Recently, neoadjuvant chemotherapy (NAC) for gastric or gastroesophageal junction (GEJ) cancer has been performed, but some patients do not respond to it. This study was performed to clarify the factors related to response. A total of 94 patients with gastric or GEJ cancer were performed NAC (n = 44) or surgery alone (n = 50). Pretreatment clinicopathological factors and the status of residual tumor after NAC were examined. There were no significant differences between the NAC and surgery groups in the clinicopathological factors except for the location of the tumor. Tumors which had regressed after NAC had poorly differentiated histology, the depth of the tumor, and lymph node metastasis. The overall response (OR) of tumors after NAC was 40.9%, which was lower than that of the surgery group (76.0%). The OR of tumors which had regressed after NAC was 36.4%, and the median disease-free survival time of the NAC group was 55.4 months, which was longer than that of the surgery group (27.7 months). Neoadjuvant chemotherapy was useful for patients with initially resectable gastric or GEJ cancer, and some patients with regressed tumor after NAC have prolonged survival.Asmara Asmara (, short form Ars) is the capital and largest city in Eritrea.
